MANUAL OF OPERATING PROCEDURES
(MOP June, 2005)

I. PURPOSE AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT

In addition to the four main purposes of the INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF GERONTOLOGY AND GERIATRICS (IAGG) (research, training, international cooperation and the Congress –see By-Law 3), the IAGG mission, most recently articulated at a Council meeting in Salsamaggiore on the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Association, is as follows:

The mission of the INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF GERONTOLOGY AND GERIATRICS is to promote the highest levels of achievement of gerontological research and training worldwide and to interact with other international, inter-governmental, and non-governmental organizations in the promotion of gerontological interests globally and on behalf of its member associations. The Association pursues these activities with a view of promoting the highest quality of life and well being of all people as they experience ageing at individual and societal levels.

The By-laws of the Association were reviewed by a committee of Council and an English version was approved by Council at the XIIIth Congress in New York (USA) in July 1985. This version – referred to hereafter as “The By-laws” can be found as Appendix VII (by E. Busse and G.L. Maddox) in N.W. Shock’s: The INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF GERONTOLOGY AND GERIATRICS: A Chronicle – 1950 to 1986 (Springer, 1988).
Article 26 of The By-laws states:

A Manual of Operating Procedures of the Association will be submitted by the Executive Committee for Council approval and constitute an appendix to Association By-laws. The manual is advisory only and is intended as a guide to desirable practice regarding the duties of the Officers of the Association; dissemination of information on actions by the Executive Committee, and planning and implementation of the International Congresses. The Council will periodically review and approve by majority vote of those present and voting, changes in the existing Manual.

The current document is a revision of the 2001 version developed by the Australian Secretariat and approved by Council in Vancouver, 2001. The current revision covers changes developed from Council direction and experience in the period 2001 to 2005.

A  ESTABLISHMENT AND LEGAL STATUS OF THE ASSOCIATION

The IAGG was founded in 1950 in Liege, Belgium. Hence anniversaries should be celebrated in accordance to the date of foundation (1950). Legal registration was processed in 1952 according to the Belgian law.

The institution that legally represents the IAGG before the Belgian law is the Belgian Gerontological Society. The Belgian representative to IAGG, as required by Belgian law, is the Council Member of the Belgian Gerontological Society. All by-law changes approved by Council must be approved and gazetted by the Belgium government before the by-law is legally valid. See the Secretary General duties for details.
B USE OF IAGG SYMBOLS AND PROTOCOL

1. LOGO
The logo represents the integration and the union of member societies from all over the world. As a recognition to the historical background of the IAGG, the logo should be subtitled "Founded 1950"

Member societies and their official publications may use the logo of the IAGG to indicate that activities are performed under the auspices of the IAGG. It may be used on the stationary of the member societies with the subtitle "Member" used along with the name of the constituent member society.

2. FLAG
The flag represents the international community and the presence of gerontologist members of IAGG all over the world, supporting the promotion and development of gerontology as a science.

The flag was a gift from the Mexican Society of Geriatrics and Gerontology intended to enhance the presence of the IAGG in scientific meetings. During the opening Ceremony of the XIV World Congress of Gerontology in Mexico (1989), the flag of the IAGG was presented for the first time.

Presentation of the official flag will follow a protocol for presentation during the World Congresses of the IAGG.

- The flag will be carried by the President or a representative of the IAGG.
- The audience will stand up.
- The flag will be delivered by the Past President of IAGG to the President –elect during the ceremony of transfer of office (usually, the opening ceremony of the World Congress).
- The official flag will be placed at the presidium and shall remain during the scientific event.
- At the closing ceremony it will be retired with honours.
3. PRESIDENTIAL MEDALLION

The Medallion represents the authority, historical background, cities of founders and presidents for the duration of the IAGG.

During the opening ceremony of a World Congresses of the IAGG, the outgoing President invests the President Elect with the Medallion.

The President may decide upon other academic or scientific events at which to use the Medallion.

Each President will engrave a disc of the Medallion with their name, country and years of office before relinquishing it at the opening ceremony of a World Congress.

The President of IAGG must securely maintain the Flag and Presidential Medallion between Congresses in view of their historical value.

C. CONSULTATIVE STATUS TO THE UN

a) Overview

The IAGG is a Category III non-governmental organization (NGO) within the UN with consultative status with the Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC). NGOs in consultative status with ECOSOC may designate person(s) to represent them at offices of the UN. Designations may only be made by the President of IAGG.

The IAGG President may appoint up to 5 representatives to each of the UN offices. This includes the Headquarters in New York and offices in Geneva and Vienna. In addition, the IAGG may appoint 1 person to each of 5 regional commissions including the Economic/Social Commissions for Africa, Europe, Latin America, West Asia, and Asia and the Pacific.
The President may also appoint 1 representative and 1 alternate to the NGO Section of the Department of Public Information (see (d) below)

b) Accreditation Process

Each calendar year the President must submit the appropriate accreditation forms even if no changes have been made from the previous year. The form is obtained from the NGO section of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs (DESA) in New York (http://www.un.org/esa/coordination/ngo/). Sections of the form when completed are sent directly to New York, Geneva, and Vienna. Passes will be issued to the IAGG representatives when they go in person to the UN offices to which they have been accredited and present a copy of the form signed by the President. Passes are valid for one calendar year.

c) Selection Process

Because there are ongoing activities for the IAGG representatives in each UN location it is important that they live in those cities (New York, Geneva, Vienna) and have time to commit to UN events. There are events organized by the NGO Section of DESA. There are events coordinated by the Conference of Non-Governmental Organizations in Consultative Relationship with the UN (CONGO), to which IAGG belongs (and pays annual dues of about $500). There are also activities convened by subcommittees of CONGO, the most important of which are the Committees on Ageing in New York, Geneva and Vienna.
When a replacement representative for any of the UN teams in place in York, Geneva or Vienna is necessary the President will ordinarily invite the President of the IAGG national member society (Austrian, Swiss, American) to submit names of people who live in those cities, have the necessary skills, interest and time.

D COLLABORATING IN INTERNATIONAL ACTIVITIES AUSPICING SHEET

From time-to-time, the IAGG has been invited to co-sponsor conferences organized by other international bodies concerned with ageing, e.g., World Federation on Mental Health, International Federation on Ageing, International Psychogeriatric Association.

It is consistent with the objectives of the IAGG to encourage and publicise such events and to remain visible in the International arena by accepting co-sponsorship or agreeing to having meetings jointly auspiced by the IAGG.

Guidelines for IAGG co-sponsorship and Auspicing of Meetings, Conferences and Other Events

[Approved July 3, 2003]

Co-sponsorship

1. An essential condition for IAGG co-sponsorship of a meeting, conference or other event is active participation in planning and organization of the event. This includes having an opportunity to comment on the proposed agenda/program, list of invited participants, speakers and/or persons invited to prepare background papers, and of participating in the planning and organization of the meeting.

2. The meeting should be of an international character (e.g. 30% or more of participants and speakers will be from other than the host country)

3. The subject(s) to be discussed and the objectives of the meeting should be of direct relevance to and in conformity with the objectives and policies of IAGG.

4. Invitations for, participation in, and the potential results or outcomes of the meeting should be such as will further the scientific, educational and other interests of IAGG, care being taken to avoid situations with political or commercial implications that could be detrimental to the Association.
5. Although acceptance of cosponsorship may require an officer of the Association or a designate or the IAGG Secretariat to devote time, travel, or undertake certain tasks connected with the meeting, it should not imply any direct financial commitments such as interpretation, translation or publication of reports and proceedings.

6. Once IAGG cosponsorship has been approved, the organizers of the event should be informed that the words “cosponsored by IAGG” may appear in the heading of documents relating to the event and that the IAGG logo may be included on their promotional materials. Other benefits may include:
- Special designation on IAGG’s web calendar (black and white logo)
- One free ad in IAGG newsletter
- One-time access to IAGG mail lists

7. In return for the above, it is expected that IAGG will be fully acknowledged as a co-sponsoring organization. Other benefits to be requested include:
- One free IAGG ad in final program/book of abstracts
- One free IAGG space in exhibit hall

8. The IAGG reserves the right to view and comment on any report of the cosponsored event before it is circulated in either restricted or public form.

Auspinging

While the guidelines for co-sponsorship generally apply, auspicing is understood to mean more than co-sponsorship. In the case of an auspice event, IAGG is the lead organization. As such, the name of the Association is very prominently traded upon in recruiting speakers and participants, and in fund-raising. The public perception is that this is an IAGG event. It trades on the reputation of the Association in a major way.

Essential conditions for IAGG auspicing of a meeting, conference or other event are:

a) Active participation in planning and organization of the event. This is taken to mean more than token representation on the organizing committee and any advisory committees associated with the event.

b) Approval of a budget with agreed upon reporting requirements and intervals. There also should be a contractual relationship with the convenor and host organization (if there is one) so as to protect the assets of the Association, limit the liability of its officers and staff and to ensure transparency.

c) The Association shall have a say and share in disposition of any profits.

d) The Association shall have the right to view and approve any report of the event before it is circulated in either restricted or public form.

e) The Association shall have a share in profits from the sale of any by-products of the event.
E. FUNDING FOR IAGG SECRETARIAT

To assist in supporting the work of the IAGG Secretariat, it was agreed at the 2003 Council Meeting that 50% of net surplus funds from each Congress would be paid to IAGG. These funds would be used to offset expenses associated with clerical and administrative support for the day-to-day activities of the Secretariat, producing a newsletter, essential travel for IAGG business, and seed other activities as the Secretariat determines is appropriate.

II. OFFICE BEARER ROLES

Office Bearers comprise the Executive of the IAGG. They include a President, Past-president, President-elect, Secretary General/Vice President and Treasurer. Day-to-day running of the Association is done principally by the President, Secretary General and Treasurer (the Secretariat). While the official duties of these offices are specified in the By-laws this section provides key information on the tasks delegated to Office Bearers. The Executive Committee of the Association includes the office bearers and the Chairs of the Regions. All have votes on the Executive Committee and the Council.

A. OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

The President, as Chief Executive Officer of the IAGG, has the responsibility of ensuring that the objectives of the Association are pursued effectively and that its proceedings are conducted in accordance with the By-laws. Should the Office of any members of the Executive become vacant, the President shall nominate successors for Council approval (Article 25b of By-laws) except that in the case of a regional chair the appointment will be made by the Region.

The principle responsibilities of the Office of President are outlined below.
1. PROMOTING INTERNATIONAL GERONTOLOGY

Principal spokesperson. The President of the Association has the obligation as well as the opportunity to be the principal spokesperson worldwide for research, training, and practice in gerontology and geriatrics. To this end, the President must take every opportunity to be visible at international, regional and national meetings in which the Association or its constituent members are, or should be, involved.

Appointment of Representatives. Beyond personal involvement, the President should take every opportunity to appoint representatives from IAGG to both public and private, national and international bodies with mandated interest in human aging, such as the United Nations and WHO and various regional and national activities initiated by these international agencies. Appointments should be made so as to minimize cost to the IAGG. If representation involves expenses to the IAGG, these expenses should be anticipated in annual budget projections.

Identification of Consultants to IAGG from Regions. The President should be visible as a source of information about gerontology and/or geriatrics. To this end the President should periodically ask the constituent societies to identify distinguished members who would be available to serve IAGG as consultants or representatives on request of the President.

2. CONVENING MEETINGS

The President arranges agendas for, and convenes, Council meetings held during the Congress and at any other time. Ordinarily at least an annual meeting of the Executive should be convened by the President.

3. CONFERRING PRESIDENTIAL AWARDS

At the Congress where the President leaves office, awards will be made at the discretion of the President to worthy recipients. A certificate should be prepared to accompany a commemorative Presidential Medal. (See Section V: Awards)

B. OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY GENERAL/VICE-PRESIDENT

The Secretary General assists the President in achieving the objectives of the IAGG. The Secretary-General, who is also Vice-President, succeeds the President if that office is vacated prematurely. (See Article 25 of the By-laws.) The principal responsibilities of this office are outlined below.

1. CORRESPONDENCE

The Secretary-general is responsible for monitoring and responding to day-to-day correspondence as it arises. This can take the form of e-mail, fax or air-mail. The former are preferred in the interest of rapid communication.

DISTRIBUTION AND APPROVAL OF MINUTES

The Secretary General is responsible for minutes of meetings of the Executive Committee and Council and for circulating these minutes in English. The approval process is as follows: the Secretary General prepares the draft for the President's approval. The approved version is then sent electronically to the members (i.e. Executive Committee or Council). At the next meeting the members are asked to approve the previously circulated minutes.

Highlights of the minutes of the Executive Committee and of Council may be published in the Newsletter or in Gerontology.

3. PROCESSING APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP

The By-laws (Articles 5, 6 & 7) are explicit in regard to the conditions of membership and required information (Organisation’s By-laws; identification of officers; full list of members). A standard letter can be sent in response to inquiries also requesting all responses to be in English.

Once all materials have been received, the Secretary-General will (a) poll the Executive Committee on behalf of Council for a recommendation in regard to acceptance of an applicant and (b) poll Council regarding this recommendation,

In any particular case the Executive Committee may act for Council, but approval of full Council is preferred.

As soon as possible after formalities are concluded, the President or the Secretary General, on behalf of the President of the IAGG, should write to the President of the newly admitted Association (with a copy to the relevant Regional Chair) welcoming the Association as a constituent member of the IAGG. When notification of membership is given, the accepted society should be notified that approval is contingent on the payment of required dues to the IAGG Treasurer.

The By-laws state that unless otherwise approved by council only one national organization from any country shall be a member of the association. However, at its Vienna Meeting, September, 2004, Council voted to have a policy that considered exercising the authority to admit more than one member per country provided the member confirmed with the objectives of the Association. (NOTE: A BY-LAW CHANGE WAS ADOPTED BY COUNCIL, BUT NOT YET RATIFIED BY THE BELGIUM GOVERNMENT, ABOLISHING THE ONE MEMBER PER COUNTRY PHRASE)

4. MONITORING OF MEMBERSHIP IN THE IAGG AND OFFICE BEARERS OF CONSTITUENT SOCIETIES

The By-laws (Article 9) are explicit in terms of payment of dues as a condition of voting and participation in the Association. It is therefore important for the Secretary-General, the Treasurer, and the President to work from the same official list of constituent societies, their officers, and Council representatives.
Officers of constituent societies and representatives to Council change at various times. These changes are consequential in at least three ways: 1) for the Treasurer when soliciting dues; 2) for the Secretary General when polling Council for purposes of voting between Congresses; and 3) for the Secretary General for purposes of providing the President-Elect an accurate list for voting when Council meets at Congresses.

The current list of constituent societies is kept as a database or spreadsheet to facilitate mailing and contact with members. Wherever possible, this information should include e-mail and facsimile information. A full list of member associations is available on the IAGG website.

5. IAGG NEWSLETTER

There is no prescription concerning the frequency of publication of the IAGG Newsletter. For instance from 1985 - 89 the Secretary-General assumed responsibility for two newsletters a year, while from 1993 - 97 a total of two newsletters were sent. It was foreshadowed that two issues per annum would be produced from 1997 – 2001 (spring/autumn). In 2001-2005 four newsletters were produced.

Anticipated cost of preparation and distribution should be included in the approved annual budget to the Association.

Copies are posted on the Website. Copies are distributed to officers of constituent member societies, council members and other bodies as deemed appropriate (e.g., International Psychogeriatric Association, Novartis Foundation, WHO, UN).

Typically a separate Congress newsletter is made available by the Congress organisers. Distribution and frequency of this publication are at the discretion and expense of the Congress Planning Committee.
6. RECEIPT OF BIDS FOR WORLD CONGRESS

The Secretary General is responsible for receiving bids from Host Associations to host World Congresses, typically by December of the year before the formal bids are considered by Council. Once all bids have been received, these are circulated to members of the Executive, in the first instance. (Section VI. Planning and Implementing World Congresses of IAGG B. Site Selection and Dates provides procedural details).

7. BYLAW CHANGES

The Secretary General is responsible for ensuring the correct procedure is followed for amending a By-Law. "The By-Laws of the Association can be amended in any regular meeting of the Association by a two-thirds vote of the Council with a quorum present provided the proposed amendment(s) have been submitted in writing at least 90 (ninety) days prior to the regular meeting of the Council and have been sent to all of the organizations (societies) in good standing". "To be legal every change to the bylaws has to be submitted and approved by the Ministry of Justice and has to be published in the official journal" (Article 16).

Typically a notice of motion to amend a bylaw, with a mover and seconder, would emerge from an Executive Committee, Secretariat or Council meeting. However, it appears that any two members could provide a notice of motion for an amendment.

The Secretary General is responsible for sending the notice of motion to each Council member and to the Presidents of the member societies. In addition, a copy must be sent to the Belgium IAGG representative who is the IAGG link with the Belgium government. These notices must be sent at least 90 days prior to the vote.

It is not possible to have e-mail votes to amend a bylaw since the bylaw specifies a regular meeting of Council. Nor is it possible to have proxy votes at the meeting although different Council members can be appointed at any time.

Amendments to the motion contained in the notice can be made at the meeting. As long as there is a 2/3rds majority of the Council members in favour the change is adopted by IAGG. However, it is not law until it has been approved by the Belgium government and published in their Official Journal. This can be a lengthy process.

The Secretary General needs to send a copy of the minutes recording the amendment to the bylaw which as been signed by both the President and the Secretary General, to the IAGG Belgium contact person, as soon as possible.

8. REPORTING TO COUNCIL

The Secretary-General will make a full report at a Council meeting held in conjunction with the World Congress at which s/he steps down. The report will include substantive activities that have occurred during the four-year tenure of office. The report might include information on, new members, major initiatives of IAGG, meetings of Executive, newsletters, prize winners.
C OFFICE OF THE TREASURER

1. PRINCIPAL RESPONSIBILITIES

The principal responsibilities of this office are the following:

- in cooperation with the President, developing the working budget of the Association for discussion and approval by the Executive Committee on behalf of Council;
- maintenance of a banking account(s) on behalf of the IAGG;
- annual solicitation of dues from constituent societies;
- periodic reports on the financial status of the Association to the Executive Committee.

2. DEVELOPING A BUDGET

In cooperation with the President and Secretary General, the Treasurer develops a budget proposal for each of four years of the Executive’s tenure. It is to be reviewed and tentatively accepted by Council when it meets during a Congress. While biannual rather than annual budgets tend in practice to be the rule, it is important to match annual income to expenditures. When the Executive Committee has approved a working budget each year, this approved budget is shared with the full Council in a letter or as a Newsletter item.

3. ESTABLISHING AN ACCOUNT

Since IAGG is incorporated in Belgium, the Treasurer must determine the legal status and requirements of an account in the Association's name in any other country. A banking institution will require specification of authorized signatures to write checks and withdraw funds. The usual procedure is to authorize the Treasurer alone to sign cheques and withdraw funds. up to US $500 or equivalent. Above that amount two signatures should be required and the second signature would ordinarily be that of the President. The Secretary General should also be a signatory to the account. Consideration should be given to establishing a $US account as a matter of course.

4. DUES

Dues are ordinarily solicited annually. The By-laws (Article 9) make clear that a constituent member society that fails to pay dues to the Association (a) forfeits voting rights after one year and (b) is subject to termination of membership by act of Council after two years of non-payment.

The fee is $USD 0.55 per member of constituent organizations. That fee level was established by Council in 1997.

Several problems are typically experienced in obtaining dues payment. The most important is failure to make contact with the appropriate officer in the constituent society. This highlights the necessity of maintaining a continuously updated list of officers of each constituent society. Another common problem is that constituent societies who arrange payment through a bank transfer do not identify their society in the transfer document. Full identification must be stressed repeatedly and provision made on the proforma. Finally, some societies prefer to pay their dues biannually rather than annually.
This preference can be accommodated if the constituent society clearly indicates its intentions to the Treasurer of IAGG.

_in an attempt to obviate or reduce these difficulties it is recommended that (a) a fixed date be set for payment and (b) a clear proforma be provided to societies when dues are solicited (see Proforma). An option to pay 1 - 4 years at a time could be an incentive for large societies with constantly growing membership. These procedures could simplify dues collection and be financially advantageous, for example by generating additional revenues through accumulated interest._

5. PERIODIC REPORTING

The Treasurer is required to make at least an annual report to the Executive Committee and to the entire Council when it meets at a Congress (By-laws Article 12). It is good practice, for the Treasurer to report the status of the IAGG to the President and the Secretary General at least quarterly and to the Executive Committee each time it meets.

Periodically the Treasurer should report to the Executive Committee on constituent societies that are delinquent in paying annual dues. Strenuous efforts should be made to rectify any such circumstances.

Like the Secretary-General, the Treasurer will make a full report at a Council meeting held in conjunction with the World Congress at which s/he steps down. The report will include information on financial matters and accounts relevant to the four-year tenure of office.
D. OFFICE OF IMMEDIATE PAST-PRESIDENT

The immediate Past-President takes up office from the moment of transfer of the Presidency at the time of installation of the new President, usually at the beginning of each World Congress.

The Immediate Past-President makes a comprehensive report to Council at its first meeting during the World Congress. The Immediate Past-President is an ex-officio member of the Executive and remains so until the succeeding appointment of a new immediate Past-President. All Past Presidents retain the right to attend Council meetings as non-voting observers.

E. OFFICE OF PRESIDENT-ELECT

The President-Elect is appointed by Council on the nomination of the host Association for the upcoming World Congress of the IAGG at the time of confirmation of the site of the next Congress.

The President-Elect is an ex-officio member of the Executive. Their prime responsibility is to Chair the Congress Planning Committee. Since, Bylaw 17 allows a different person to be the President of the Congress than the person who is the President Elect. Council must approve the one person for both positions or, if two persons, for each position.
III RESPONSIBILITIES OF MEMBER ASSOCIATIONS

Each constituent society should specify a "best address" for contact. This address is most likely to be permanent or to ensure forwarding of mail. Address details should include e-mail and Fax, as well as a postal address.

Each constituent society should report to the IAGG Secretary General any changes consequent upon election of new officers, and provide appropriate addresses in a timely way. Ideally, this information could be conveyed via the relevant Region.

Regional Executives are best placed to encourage non-member societies in their region to consider joining the IAGG.

IV. MEETINGS

A. MEETINGS OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Although the By-laws do not specify the frequency with which the Executive Committee, which includes Regional Chairs, should meet, at least one meeting annually is advised. More frequent contact by mail, fax, email, telephone or teleconference is encouraged. Meetings of the Executive Committee should be appropriately preceded by an agenda and supporting documents.

B. MEETINGS OF COUNCIL

The full Council ordinarily meets during a World Congress. At least two meetings are required. The preparation of the agendas for these meetings and proposed annual budgets for four years are the responsibility of the President-Elect in association with the Secretary General-designate, and Treasurer-designate. Once installed, the (new) President will then preside at these meetings. The out-going Secretary-General will continue to act only until the installation of the new office bearers. By-laws (Article 21B) require that the agenda and budget proposals be sent to members of Council 90 days in advance of the Council Meeting.

C. MINUTES

The President should ensure that the minutes of the prior meeting are distributed by the Secretary-General in a timely fashion to members of the committee prior to a meeting and summarised in appropriate publications for distribution to Member Organisations and Council.

D. VOTING AT COUNCIL MEETINGS

A list of member societies in good standing is prepared by the Treasurer and Secretary General, in consultation with the President, for use at a World Congress. This list indicates the number of council members eligible to vote (By-laws Article 14) and should be provided by the outgoing Secretary General to the Secretary General-Designate, preferably about four months prior to a World Congress, with any amendments transmitted as they might be received. This list should enable the incoming Secretary General to prepare appropriate voting cards, if deemed necessary, for use on site at the Council meetings.

These cards may be used (displayed) in any vote taken by Council. Having such cards permits one to determine any changes in official representation of a constituent society and permits the Treasurer to solicit the payment of dues of Associations in arrears at meetings of Council.
The By-Laws do not authorize proxy voting; indeed they refer to "members present" thus precluding proxy voting.

V. GERONTOLOGY:

THE OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE IAGG

The journal Gerontology is published by Karger (Basel) and is designated in it as The Official Organ of the IAGG. Traditionally it comprised two sections: Clinical and Experimental. Dr. E. Busse served for many years as Gerontology’s Editor for the IAGG.

In 1996 Prof G. Andrews initiated discussions with Karger about a new editorial arrangement and expansion of the areas covered by Gerontology. He proposed, and Karger subsequently accepted, that the Editor for the IAGG would be appointed for a four-year term, concurrent with their membership on the IAGG Executive. The Editorship need not be tied to any particular Executive position. However, this role should be consistent with the incumbent’s research background and experience as reviewer and editorial board member for other peer-reviewed journals. The 1997 Council meeting endorsed this recommendation. Prof M. Luszcz was appointed as Editor for the IAGG for the period of her tenure as Secretary General but Treasurer Prof. Andrew Wister took over this role from 2001-2005.

The Editor for the IAGG should provide regular input to Gerontology, which reaches a wide audience. Materials overlap with the content of the newsletter and can include conference announcements, as well as news items and editorials.

DELETED SECTION NOT RELEVANT

VI. AWARDS

A. PRESIDENTIAL AWARD

These awards mark the continuation of the tradition of delivering a testimonial award to individuals who have contributed to the enhancement of IAGG in specific tasks. Awardees are typically former office bearers or external persons who have assisted in pursuing objectives and implementing activities of the IAGG.

As a Presidential testimonial, the President of IAGG assumes full responsibility for the nominations of candidates and their proposal for approval to the Executive. The President designates the type of recognition according to circumstances, and an appropriate certificate is presented along with a medal at a Congress.

B. BUSSE RESEARCH AWARD

This award is supported by an endowment that secures its continuity. It recognises outstanding contributions to gerontological research over three decades by Dr. Ewald W. Busse (President of IAGG, 1985-1989). The award was initiated by the Center for the Study of Aging and Human Development of Duke University. The Award is typically made every two years to young researchers, one in Biomedical Sciences and one in Behavioural and Social Sciences.
VII. PLANNING AND IMPLEMENTING WORLD CONGRESSES OF IAGG

A. NAME OF CONGRESS

The Executive Committee decided at the 1989 Congress in Acapulco that the name World (rather than International Congress of Gerontology) would be used in announcements, commencing with the 1997 Congress. However the designation International Congress of Gerontology is retained and identifies the sequential number of the Congress starting from the first Congress held in Belgium in 1950. Thus the 2001 World Congress in Vancouver was the 17th (XVII) INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF GERONTOLOGY AND GERIATRICS World Congress of Gerontology.

B. BIDS: SITE SELECTION AND DATES

Other things being equal, it is typical to rotate the location of Congresses through the Regions, in order to promote the development, and raise the profile, of gerontology throughout the world. The informal rotation is: Europe, Asia Oceana, North America, South America.

The By-laws designate Council as responsible for selecting the site and date of World Congresses. Constituent societies interested in hosting a Congress ordinarily submit an official written proposal approximately eight years in advance, with information on congress facilities and appropriate letters of commitment from expected sources of support. Council selects a site provisionally and re-confirms that site four years later. For example, at the XVIth Congress (Adelaide, Australia, 1997), the site of the XVIIth Congress (Vancouver, Canada, 2001) which had been selected in Budapest in 1993 was re-confirmed and the site (Brazil) of the XVIII\textsuperscript{th} Congress for 2005 was selected. At the 2005 Congress in Brazil, Council would be expected to re-confirm France as the site of the XIX\textsuperscript{th} Congress (2009) and provisionally select the site for the XX\textsuperscript{th} (2013) Congress. The provisional site is officially confirmed at the immediately prior World Congress.

The following procedures and practices should be adopted:

1. Potential host societies or countries should make their interests known to the Executive Committee of IAGG, usually by July of the year before the next Congress (e.g., July 2000 for the 2009 Congress). Formal proposals should be received by December 31 in the year before the Congress at which the venue will be decided.

2. The formal proposal from the intending Host Association should include the following six components:

   i. A description of the general approach and a possible theme;

   ii. An indication of the capacity of the host society to stage it;

   iii. A venue where the Congress would be held;

   iv. An indication of likely or actual sources of financial support necessary for holding a Congress;

   v. Letter/s of support from relevant professional bodies (e.g., the Host Association, Regional Secretariat or Member Societies) or government instrumentalities;

   vi. Peripheral, satellite or other special events that might be held in conjunction with the Congress.

3. The proposal to host a World Congress of the IAGG should place emphasis on the scientific aspects of the Congress, as well as the infrastructure and capacity to support the Congress. Information regarding likely appeal stemming from local tourist attractions is secondary to the information that should be submitted with your bid.

4. Four (4) complete copies of all relevant materials should be provided to the IAGG Secretariat no later than December in the year before the bid is to be considered.

5. Prior to the Congress where site selection occurs it is advisable to contact the current Congress President about distribution of any bid or promotional materials during that Congress. This might include purchasing a trade display at that Congress.

6. At the time of the Congress where initial site selection occurs
   - a representative of the host society should be prepared to speak to the bid during a Council meeting. This should entail a presentation of no more than ten (10) minutes (inclusive of any audio-visual material), highlighting the six (6) key components above.
   - If desired, copies of the bid (or an abbreviated version of it) and promotional materials can be provided to all members of Council.

7. Expressions of interest to host a Congress should be included in the IAGG News.

C IAGG and CONGRESS LEADERSHIP

At the Congress immediately prior to the Congress at which they will assume office, Council confirms as President-elect of IAGG the person proposed by the constituent society that will host the upcoming World Congress. At the same meeting of Council, the President-elect of IAGG should propose for confirmation by Council a Secretary General/Vice President-elect, and Treasurer-elect of the IAGG.

The constituent Society of IAGG selected to host a Congress will also propose to Council a member to be the President of the Congress. This is ordinarily the President Elect but the society may propose for approval by Council a President of the Congress other than the IAGG President-Elect.

D. CONGRESS PROGRAM PLANNING COMMITTEE

By-laws (Article 29) recommend a Planning Committee, typically of ten (10) individuals, which includes members of the Executive Committee (President, Secretary General/Vice President, Treasurer, Immediate Past-President and President-Elect) chairs of the four regions of the Association, and at least one other person selected by the President-Elect (Congress President). Additional people may be recommended but they must be approved by Council or Executive on behalf of Council. This committee should be in place six months after the conclusion of the most recent World Congress.

The President-Elect, chairs the Planning Committee because this officer is ultimately responsible for the Congress. Participation by the Chair of each Region or their designated representative is vital. The full Congress Planning Committee should meet at least twice and ideally be notified 6 months in advance of meetings so as to ensure the representation of all Regions of the IAGG. Meetings of the local Organizing Committee will be much more frequent and at the discretion of the Congress President.
Congress Planning Committee members, particularly Chairs of Regions, should make a special effort to select and keep in contact with committees which represent the diversity of disciplines within their regions. These Regional Committees, if selected early, can be very useful in program planning, as well as in evaluation and recommendations regarding submitted abstracts. Regional Committees supplement and complement the Congress Planning Committee.

E. LEGAL AND FINANCIAL OBLIGATIONS

1. LEGAL ISSUES
The IAGG is officially registered as a professional association in Belgium (1952). However, the legal status of IAGG in any particular country planning to host a Congress may be ambiguous and should be discussed with legal counsel. In general it is advisable for Congress Organizers to incorporate as a separate non-profit organization eligible to legally do business, nationally and internationally.

2. FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY FOR CONGRESS
The traditions and expectations regarding financial responsibility for IAGG Congresses are unambiguously clear. Financial responsibility for a Congress remains with the designated host constituent society or an incorporated body (see previous section) that it may put in place for purposes of planning, organizing and implementing a World Congress. Acceptance of this responsibility should be clearly documented in a Memorandum of Agreement signed by the President-Elect and the President of IAGG as a condition of confirmation of a Congress site by Council, four years prior to said Congress. By precedent, the IAGG per se is not legally responsible for debts of the Congress, nor the owner of assets generated by a Congress, apart from the 50% surplus designated for the IAGG Secretariat for the subsequent four years (see Section I. Purpose and Historical Context E. Funding for IAGG Secretariat.

3. COSTS FOR IAGG EXECUTIVE ATTENDANCE AT CONGRESS PLANNING COMMITTEE MEETINGS.

Financial responsibility for members of the IAGG Executive Committee when they attend meetings as members of the Planning Committee of a Congress is shared by the Congress Planning Committee and the IAGG.

Since it is to the advantage of IAGG to coordinate meetings of the Executive Committee and the Congress Planning Committee in the interest of reducing costs, the following understanding currently operates.

• When the Executive Committee of IAGG meets (typically in conjunction with a professional meeting likely to attract most of its members), IAGG reimburses Executive Committee members’ economy airfares by the least expensive and most direct route and for a reasonable per diem, for the day/s required for the Executive Committee meeting. A reasonable per diem would be at a level sufficient to cover the cost of accommodation at the meeting venue and modest expenses.

• When the Executive Committee and the larger Congress Program Planning Committee meet jointly, for the day/s on which the Program Planning Committee meets, members of the Executive Committee will be reimbursed for room and board costs and the resulting cost will be equally shared by IAGG and the Congress Planning Committee or as otherwise agreed according to the specific circumstances. Expenses of other members of the program Planning Committee are totally the responsibility of the Congress Planning Committee.

4. PRESENTATION OF AUDITED CONGRESS ACCOUNTS TO COUNCIL

At the 1997 IAGG Council meeting, it was agreed that final Congress accounts should be presented to the Executive in the first instance. The information based on the audited accounts of the Congress would then be referred to Council Members within about 6 months of the closure of the Congress.

5. LOW INTEREST INTER-CONGRESS LOAN

To assist early stages of Congress organizing, it was agreed at the 1997 Council Meeting that a low interest loan would be made from Congress to Congress. In the first instance the value of the loan would be $USD 30,000.

Payment of the loan would be made contingent upon a Congress Business Plan (budget) being received and approved by the Executive. The loan is repayable (with interest set at approximately the prime rate applying at the time in the country from which the loan is made) within 6 months of the closure of the Congress.

The funds to provide the loan are held by the IAGG. These were donated, in the amount of $USD30,000, to the IAGG by the Canadian Association of Gerontology in 2002 strictly for the purpose of start up funds for World Congresses.
F. BUDGETING

Estimated budgets will vary considerably from country to country and from Congress to Congress. The most important initial financial issue is cash flow rather than total cost. That is, the start-up expenses three or four years before a Congress, which are necessary to establish a secretariat and distribute initial publicity, are necessary but difficult to cover far in advance. To facilitate this process, the loan arrangement described above exists.

Experience suggests that Congress organizers need a substantial amount of monetary resources at least 30 months in advance of a Congress to cover development of a secretariat and to send out first and second Congress announcements. Experience has shown that initial resources required are in the area of $US 100,000.

The sources of total financial support for a Congress may be estimated to be 35 to 40% from registrations; 40 to 50% from awards from government, businesses, foundations, or individuals; and 10 to 20% in-kind services from business or other organizations (e.g., the Host Association).

Registration fees do not arrive in large numbers until at least 9 months prior to the Congress. Consequently cash flow for Congress implementation depends heavily on securing approximately 35 to 40% of the budget, as early in the process of developing a Congress as possible, from awards and gifts.

In light of information on sponsorship and likely registrants, a Congress Planning Committee could put in place initiatives to offset costs for designated categories of registrants, e.g., from individuals from developing countries, students, or retired gerontologists. Appropriate concessions for partial or waived registration could be agreed. It remains the prerogative of the Planning Committee to determine any concessions. (For instance, in previous Congresses some of the following have occurred: $1,000 to Invited Symposia Organizers; waiver of registration for those non-gerontologists who normally would not register to attend; honoraria to invited speakers or symposia convenors, etc.). The Planning Committee should include in its deliberations concessions or reimbursements made for members of the outgoing Executive and Regional Chairs

G. PLANNING SCIENTIFIC PROGRAM

ABSTRACTS

For the 2001 Congress, it was agreed by the Executive Committee that the local Organizing Committee would establish an Abstract Review Panel. The Organizing Committee would convey the membership of the Panel to the Executive of the IAGG for confirmation and approval.

The Abstract Review Panel has delegated responsibility to review and accept or reject abstracts for the 2001 Congress. It was further agreed that if the need arose, borderline submissions would be referred back to Regions for clarification and recommendation.

The success of this approach will be evaluated by the Program Planning Committee to determine if the arrangement should continue for future World Congresses.

A date for submission of abstracts must be set which accommodates a preference of Congress participants for as late a date as possible and the necessity for organizers to have enough time to evaluate abstracts, produce an abstract book, program and timetable. The local organizing committee is responsible for decisions about, and consequences of, acceptance of late abstracts.

2. SCIENTIFIC PROGRAM

Programs ordinarily include plenary sessions, invited symposia, submitted papers and symposia, posters, workshops, and other 'special events' (e.g., meetings of international bodies such as the UN).

Attention must be given to the appropriate and equitable distribution of plenary sessions and invited symposia among the sections representing the various disciplinary interests within the IAGG. Nominations for keynotes, plenary speakers, invited symposia or other special events are ordinarily sought from members of the Executive and Regional Chairs, as well as being recommended by the local scientific program committee.

Composition of free paper or poster sessions will of necessity be determined by delegates. In the interest of keeping the number of concurrent sessions manageable, use of thematically grouped poster formats should be seriously considered/encouraged for unsolicited submissions. A decision on the number of presentations an individual could make during the Congress is at the discretion of the Organizing Committee.

Program planners have the option of sending to participants a skeleton program which lists sessions by title, speakers included and abbreviated titles of individual presentations. Then, at the time of actual registration, a full program is available.

A relatively complete skeleton program is essential at least six months in advance so that participants may make their travel plans and accommodation arrangements.
3. FEES AND PUBLICITY

The registration fee should be as modest as possible. It should be set with the expectation that it will cover Congress costs, repayment of seeding allocations, and all other financial commitments, including reimbursement of the IAGG loan. Ongoing use of electronic media or Congress and IAGG Newsletters for updates and dissemination of information is highly advisable. Distribution of announcements to IAGG member organizations and Council members is vital to a successful World Congress. Inclusion of an IAGG / World Congress booth, display or brochures at Regional IAGG meetings, National Conferences, and other major geriatric or gerontological meetings and events is highly advisable.

H. LANGUAGE / TRANSLATION

Decisions regarding provision of translation services involve several practical considerations. Organizers must consider whether any single language can be the official language of the Congress, e.g., for purposes of submitted abstracts for review or for presenting papers. In practice, English has become the official language of World Congresses of Gerontology.

Permission to use multiple languages affects the review and publication process and is therefore more than just a courtesy to participants. Simultaneous translation can be very expensive. Consequently, even when translation services are offered, decisions have to be made regarding the cost of promising of simultaneous translation, in how many languages, for how many sessions. In all cases, the Congress will bear this expense.
I. SUGGESTED PLANNING SCHEDULE FOR CONGRESS

The following schedule is based on experience of previous Congress Planning Committees. The months specified indicate months prior to the Congress. Variation from this schedule would be expected in future planning but experience suggests that such a schedule is realistic.

VIII. REGIONAL MATTERS

A. OFFICE BEARERS AND REGIONAL BY-LAWS

The By-laws encourage initiative of the Regions of IAGG in pursuing the Association's objectives. They stress that elected IAGG regional leadership must

(i) be confirmed by the Executive Committee and Council, and
(ii) report regularly to the President regarding regional activities carried out in the name of the Association.

Regional By-Laws should be available on the IAGG Website for easy access by Constituent Societies.

B. PLANNING AND IMPLEMENTING REGIONAL CONGRESSES

Regional Congresses of IAGG are normally held in the years between World Congresses (most often two years after a World Congress) and develop on the initiative of regional leadership. Regional leadership must keep the Executive Committee informed of intentions, general plans, and proposed responsible organizers.

Leadership of Regional Congresses is determined by appropriate Regional Officers and Committees of the Region. It is desirable that these arrangements be confirmed by the Executive Committee of IAGG.

Three of the four regions (Asia-Oceania, COMLAT, and European) hold such meetings. NARC typically holds meetings during the GSA or CAG annual meetings, as required. In addition, since 1995, the NAR and COMLAT have jointly staged a Pan American Congress of Gerontology once every four-years, under the auspices of the IAGG. It is held in the same cycle as the Regional Congresses, alternately in the USA or Latin America.

Financial arrangements for (Inter) Regional Congresses are the responsibility of the approved organizers of such Congresses.

C. THE INTER-REGIONAL PAN-AMERICAN CONGRESS

A brief history of the evolution of the Pan American Congress follows.

In 1992, at a Regional meeting during the Cuban Congress, Bravo Williams proposed to have a Pan American Congress co-chaired with the North America Region every four years. This would be in addition to COMLAT Regional Congress, and would not replace it. Although there had been a Pan Am meeting linked to the IAGG in 1956, the arrangement was not formalized or continued. Hence the “First” Pan American Congress (PAC) of the IAGG has come to be recognized as that held in 1995 in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

During 1993 PAC, planning continued in Mexico in conjunction with a meeting of the Sandoz Prize Committee, and in Budapest at the World Congress, during a COMLAT Regional meeting. Bravo Williams and Edit Beregi worked together with the Regions to implement the 1995 Pan American Congress, in Sao Paulo. There it was decided to have the next PAC in North America. San Antonio, Texas was selected as the site, with Roger McCarter as Convenor and President.

In 1996 in Cuba, the ComLat Region decided that Argentina would be next host of PAC in 2003. NARC was contacted and both GSA and CAG agreed that they would like to participate.

In 1999, at the PAC in San Antonio, a meeting was held by the IAGG Executive with representatives of NARC and COMLAT to regularize this IAGG Congress. In the absence of IAGG Regional By-Laws of both regions, it is difficult to formalize arrangements for the composition and terms of reference of a PAC Planning Committee. However, they should be in line with IAGG recommendations and ultimately embodied in Regional By-laws. At a minimum, the Congress Planning Committee should comprise members of each Regional Council, supplemented by additional members from relevant Societies for the local organizing committee.
Financial responsibility for the PAC, as with all IAGG Congresses, rests with the Congress Planning Committee, not with any existing gerontological organization. Mechanisms could be put in place to deal with this. Any surplus could be made available to the next PPC as a seeding loan or split equally between Regions, regardless of which Region hosts the PAC. As with the IAGG, this would be on the understanding that any loan would be repaid upon completion of the subsequent PAC. A permanent account could be established for the PAC, jointly by NARC and COMLAT and probably in US dollars.
Funds from such a permanent common account could be used by the two Regions to conduct Regional affairs. There is precedence for this in the Asia Oceania Region, with a secretariat maintained by Regional Congress surpluses. Such an arrangement would make more transparent financial outcomes of the PAC and other Regional initiatives. Regions could adopt procedures along the lines of those decided at the World Congress in Adelaide to provide a contribution to a secretariat and a float for future PAC’s.
